JUNIOR BASEBALL ORGANIZES

At a well attended meeting held in the Blairmore public library on Wednesday evening, it was decided to re-organize the Blairmore Junior Baseball Club for the season 1936.

Mr. Sidney White was unanimously re-elected manager; Gustav Vangot-sinoven, coach; John Chala, assistant. George Linn was elected secretary-treasurer.

After discussing several proposals regarding a Pass junior league, the meeting adjourned, to re-convene on Monday next at 7.30 p.m. in the Library.

MASTER CODES

Alberta is commencing an experiment with codes and many questions are being asked. Why are codes necessary? Who will benefit most from codes? Can codes be enforced? etc., etc.—asks an exchange.

Different people answer these questions in different ways, but most people will agree that we have had a master code for at least two thousand years, and the reason business codes are necessary at this time is because we have not lived and conducted business along the lines laid down in the master code which reads: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

The idea of codes is splendid if all people would live up to them.

Our opinion is that codes will provide crooks with a few more loopholes and opportunities for cheating and graft. The merchant who at present short weighs and short changes customers will not honestly live up to the rules of any code. It is not in his character to be fair and honest. He will expect others to abide by the code while he benefits by pretending to do so. Enforcement will likely be about as easy and effective as enforcement of the Government Liquor Control regulations are at the present time.—Wainwright Star.

LICENSE ACT IN EFFECT

Far reaching in scope and covering the operations of over 10,000 firms in this province, the new provincial act providing for the licensing of trades and businesses is said to have come into effect on Wednesday of this week, a proclamation to this effect having been published in the Alberta Gazette.

The licensing regulations will apply in particular to retail merchants, in view of the "master code" having been proclaimed on April 6th. Also, dry cleaners are affected, as their code also was proclaimed at the same time.

The licensing, however, will apply to all trades, businesses and occupations, whether they have codes or not, with the exception of certain exempted trades which are specified in the act.

BROWNIE — MORRISON

Of considerable interest to a wide circle of friends was the quiet wedding which took place at the United church manse in Pincher Creek, on Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, when Jean, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Morrison, of Cowley, was united in marriage to Frank Austin Brownie, B.A., B.Sc., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Brownie, of Calgary. The ceremony was performed by Rev. N. W. Whitmore.

The bride was charming in a model ensemble of navy, dull-finished French crepe, hat of hand-woven straw and accessories of corresponding color. She carried a bouquet of pink butterfly roses, and was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Morrison. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Gordon Brownie, of Calgary.

After the ceremony, the participants returned to the home of the bride's parents for a wedding breakfast, leaving later by motor for a short honeymoon in the southern part of the province.

The bride travelled in a navy, shadow-plaid coat of "swing-back" model, leather-bound derby of navy felt, with purse, gloves and shoes to match.

The bride is a graduate of the Calgary Normal School, and has been a valued member of the Cowley school staff for a number of years. Her parents are among the early settlers of the district, Mrs. Morrison having been one of the first teachers.

The groom is a graduate in arts and engineering at the University of Alberta, and was twice principal of the Cowley School.

Following their motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Brownie will reside in Edmonton.—F.G.B.

TRIPLETS REACH 70th BIRTHDAY

DAYSpring, Nova Scotia, April 6.—Dayspring's triplet sisters, born in the year of Canadian confederation, entered their 70th year today.

Daughters of the late Cyprus and Sarah Emeno, they were born at this village, then called Summerside, on April 5th, 1867.

All three have been married and have grown-up families.

At a meeting of the employees called Saturday by the Blairmore local, Mine Workers Union of Canada, the Blairmore section of the joint negotiation committee gave a report of the negotiations conducted to date with the West Canadian Collieries on the new agreement. Points not yet settled include the check-off and other minor details regarding working conditions, but it is expected a settlement will be arrived at in the course of the next few days. The executive of the Blairmore and Bellevue Miners' Association have already signed the new agreement on behalf of their members.

POSTMASTERS AND PATRONAGE

A recent bill introduced by O. L. Boulanger, Liberal Member for Bellechance, Que., for the purpose of removing the outside Civil Service Commission, was viewed with dismay by all civil servants but particularly by the country, village and small-town postmasters. Under previous governments this class of employee suffered severely, particularly in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces and even to a certain extent in the other provinces also. Mr. Veniot, Postmaster General in the previous King Government set a very bad example and was followed by Mr. Saupe, Postmaster General in the Bennett Government, who, although he promised to abolish the spoils or patronage system, found the pressure from those who wanted jobs too great for him and during his term of office he equalled, if not exceeded, the previous record set by Mr. Veniot.

Under these circumstances it was only natural that a change in Government again caused much perturbation amongst the Post Offices in Eastern Canada particularly, and the Dominion Secretary of the Canadian Postmasters' Association, Mr. Charles D. Griffith, accompanied by Col. E. J. White, postmaster of Bathurst, N.B., interviewed the Hon. J. C. Elliott very shortly after his appointment to the cabinet. They were pleasantly surprised to find a new type of man holding the office of Postmaster General, who had already refused to dismiss small country postmasters wholesale without any charges being laid against them, or without the accused being given an opportunity of defending themselves against any political charges which might have been made by those desirous of obtaining their positions.

Since that time Mr. Elliott has gallantly carried on his fight with the suit that very few postmasters have resigned or been dismissed and there is a greater sense of security in the postal service today than has ever been known before.

If the Hon. Mr. Elliott can stick with his guns and withstand the pressure, there is no doubt that he will have done a great act and his name will ever be remembered in the postal service as the man who killed patronage. The postal service is, without doubt, the greatest business in Canada, entering intimately in the lives of every citizen, and the disrupting effect on this great business machine can readily be understood when over eight hundred postmasters lost their positions after each change of Government and were replaced by inexperienced men.

A SENSIBLE MOVE

The blanket order by F. W. Woolworth Company to its branches to discontinue all sales of play pistols merits a passing salute by the marchers in the army of peace lovers. It is, to say the least, disconcerting to parents, and to those who are not parents, when they are waylaid by children removed one step from the baby carriage with shrill shouts of "Put 'em up!"

Only recently a child in Long Island, New York, was gravely injured when the strong spring of a toy arm suddenly went off cock. Teachers and pupils at the school the boy attended started an energetic crusade against all such potentially harmful toys, but it is adding to reflect that such alertness must wait upon accident. Apart from the physical danger, however, the universal wish for peace is not furthered by fostering a fondness for weapons which are usually used for mimic warfare or imitation of the cowardly acts of gangsters.

While the discouragement of the use of toy arms may not seem greatly to advance the sentiment against war—actual or mimic—the ruling of

CROWS' NEST PASS STUDENT ARTISTS AT LETHBRIDGE

Presenting a very fine program of early eighteenth-century composers interspersed with a few modern, student artists of music from the Crows' Nest Pass were heard by a small but very appreciative audience at the Marquis hotel on Wednesday evening. The program was sponsored by the Women's Musical club and the performers were the piano pupils of Miss Madeleine Chardon and the violin students of Mr. W. H. Moser.

Delightful chamber music was a feature of the program, the artists being Frank Hisek, first violin; Lawrence Fisher, second violin; George Kerr, viola, and W. H. Moser, violin-cello. They opened the evening with Brevet's quartette in G Minor. Playing well together, they had nicely blended tones and fine technical background included with which was an understanding of the theme which was played in three movements, allegro affettuoso, andante and allegro vivace. The three violinists were also heard in the concerto in D Minor by Vivaldi, first and second movements. This number received the heartiest applause of the evening, the precision and fire of the playing, combined with fine phrasing and good technique hit a most responsive chord. Miss Isabel Westrup was at the piano, giving splendid support.

Owen Brown, young pianist, played a gavotte by Defesch, bringing out the clear singing tones with rhythmic precision, and Miss Georgette Danc, another young pianist, had pleasing attack and good body to her playing with a fine sense of rhythm. Her selection was "Giga" by Kammell.

Lawrence Fisher, violinist, showed splendid contrast in his playing of the early Bohemian composition by Hans Neussidler, "The Dance of the Princesses." Frank Hisek gave violin selection, "Air on G String" by Puccini, which was outstanding for broad style and good full tone. His violin, made by Mr. Henry Chin, added depth and beauty to the performance. George Kerr, the other violinist, whose playing has been accorded approval on numerous occasions, was in fine form, his phrasing of Sammartini's Canto Amoroso being exceptionally good.

The piano students all played extremely well, showing fine technical training and an appreciation of the compositions. Freda Antrobus played an early German number, "The Knitter," by Schickelhart. Her playing is clean-cut with good musical phrasing and plenty of color. Umie Johnson showed fine contrast in her playing of an early composition, Sammartini's "Bagatelle" and a modern number "Beginning of the Shadow," by Rowley, the former showing a certain marked restraint with the latter being of an impressionistic style. Musical chording marked the piano work of Lorna Hales in "Praeludium in D Minor" by Carboneil. Her pedalling was such as to bring out the most of the composition combined with a firm touch and singing tones. Isabel Westrup, the most advanced of the piano students, has an exceptionally good technical background which she uses to advantage in her playing. She gave a nice smooth performance of triple work in Scarlatti's Capriccio, resulting in a fine musical performance and an interesting contrasting number was Lohmann's "Rhapsody in C Major" which gave opportunity for a heavier type of musicianship, which was capably handled.

Markedly modernistic was the 5 and 10-cent store management is a move in the right direction. There are parents right here in Blairmore, whose apparent choice of toys for the kids is the toy guns.

composition by T. B. McEwen, "Sonata in G," No. 6, played with Miss Madeleine Chardon at the piano and George Kerr, violinist. Each instrument carried its own subject, never interchanging. It was an interesting piece of work well done, but requiring an understanding of that type of modern composition for true appreciation.

Preceding the program, Mr. Moser gave a short introductory talk. Later he spoke on behalf of modern music and urged that the audience listen to it with a desire to understand and get used to the unusual themes and rhythm. Present day masters must use new means to gain recognition: "Beethoven was modern once," he concluded.

An interesting and commendable innovation was introductory remarks by the students prior to their performance, giving a brief resume of the composer whose works they would present. The concert was one of the most enjoyable presented by the Women's Musical club and those having missed the program robbed themselves of a real treat.—Lethbridge Herald.

Were Once Welcomed

But Now Dandelion Has Become Pest To Western Cities

About forty years ago the first dandelions appeared on the railway right-of-way through a western city. The homesick easterners came to admire this reminder of their homes, but it seemed to be no one's duty to point out the condition caused by these dandelions in the east; consequently no steps were taken to prevent the spread of these flowers. Now, every city in the early spring is carpeted with yellow dandelions; later on when these flowers are seeding, a wind has the appearance of fog caused by millions and millions of dandelion seed, which blows for miles in all directions, and the eradication of the dandelion pest, is the subject of learned discussion, with the hope that some scientist will sometime discover some cheap chemical solution which will destroy the dandelion without killing the grass. —Brandon Sun.

Will Need Fifth Liner

Over 6,000 Reservations Made For Vimy Pilgrimage

A flotilla of five ships will convey close to 6,000 pilgrims to Vimy Ridge in July for the unveiling of Canada's national memorial there. In a consultation between Brig-General Alex Ross, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, and representatives of the Canadian Pacific and White Star-Canard steamship companies, the decision was reached to augment the formerly arranged four liners by an additional one.

The capacity of the "troopships" is 5,950. Already 6,400 persons have indicated their intention of making the journey; but the expectation is that before the date of embarkation quite a number will "drop out."

General Ross said that the 5,950 was the "absolutum limit."

"We announced many weeks ago that the deadline for registrations would be March 12," he said, "and it naturally follows that all persons who signified their intention of taking part in the pilgrimage and had complied with the requirements as on that date would receive first consideration. Those who came in after must of necessity be placed on a waiting list, their expectations being dependent solely upon whatever vacancies result from cancellations."

The Legion head announced that Col. D. E. McIntyre, D.S.O., M.C., of Owen Sound, had been placed in charge of "pilgrimage movements." Col. McIntyre, with staff which will be furnished him, will co-operate with those responsible for the actual moving of this pilgrim host to ensure no slip up in the program.

Col. McIntyre was general staff officer, first grade, of the 2nd Canadian division. He served as intelligence officer of the 28th battalion, was advanced to the staff and became I.O. of the 4th Canadian infantry brigade, later proceeding to division.

A New Expedition

Glacier Priest Hopes To Measure Ice On Greenland's Mountains

Father Bernard R. Hubbard, famed as the "glacier priest" for his scientific discoveries in the Arctic, is preparing a new expedition. He hopes shortly to measure the depth of ice on Greenland's mountains. Admiral Richard Byrd and other explorers claim that the ice caps in Greenland and in the Antarctic are more than 2,000 feet deep. Father Hubbard believes they are not more than 2,000 feet. To prove this he is going to Alaska to put his theories to the test on the Takus Glacier. Snow and ice piling up creates pressure, he argues. Pressure creates heat, and heat melts the ice. The melting of the snow and ice is perpetually melting away, keeping the depth of the ice belt at an average of 2,000 feet. Father Hubbard and his party will have to traverse the treacherous Takus and Takus River with their dangerous rapids, ice menace and rock strewn beds.

Really Had A Grievance

Story Told About One Relief Worker In New York

Those who are prone to find fault with the "speed" at which welfare workers accomplish their tasks, will return for relief vouchers, will appreciate this one from the New York Mirror:

One of the PWA workers on Riverside drive was complaining because he had no shovel. He finally told the foreman about it. "Gee, whiz," he gasped, "I haven't any shovel!" "Well, whaddya kickin' about?" was the answer, "you don't have to do any work if you ain't got no shovel!"

"I know," pouted the fellow, as he stamped both feet, "but I haven't got anything to lean on—like the other guys!"

VICTORIA UNIVERSITY TO CELEBRATE CENTENNIAL

The one hundredth anniversary of the granting of the Royal Charter by King William IV, in 1836 to Upper Canada Academy, Cobourg, Ontario, as an institution of higher education, will be observed this fall by Victoria University, Toronto. The Upper Canada Academy changed its name to Victoria College in 1841, and this was changed to Victoria University in 1884. Victoria College conferred the first degree in Arts ever conferred in Upper Canada, in 1845. The original building of Upper Canada Academy, later Victoria College, in Cobourg, was opened in 1836 and still stands. This building is pictured in (1). Emmanuel College, the theological branch of Victoria University, was opened in Toronto in 1831 and is shown in (3) above. Victoria College (2) the Arts Faculty of Victoria University, was opened in 1892 when Victoria College federated with the University of Toronto, and moved to Toronto.

SELECTED RECIPES

BREAD IN 4½ HOURS

(Four Loaves)

(About) 12 cups Purify Flour, sifted
4 cups water
2 tablespoons shortening (melted)
3 tablespoons white sugar
2 tablespoons salt
2 compressed yeast cakes

Method: Dissolve yeast in ½ cup of lukewarm water. In the remaining liquid (which should not be above 100 degrees F.) dissolve the sugar and salt, then add yeast. Mix in sufficient flour to make a soft batter; add shortening and beat well. Stir in sufficient flour to produce dough soft enough to handle conveniently, but not sticky. (In cold weather, warm flour before using.) Turn out on floured board and knead until soft and elastic. (The temperature of the dough should now be between 80 and 85 degrees F.) Place in a greased bowl, cover and let rise until it is double the original bulk; then punch down. Let rise again and, after punching down once more, divide into pieces which will fill 12 black sheet-iron baking pans. Round these pieces into balls and let stand a few minutes; then mould into loaves and place in greased pans. Cover and keep in warm place while rising. When double in bulk, place in oven. If the surface is pressed lightly with the finger, the slight depression thus made will remain when the loaves are ready for baking. Should the depression quickly disappear, let rising continue a little longer. Bake in hot oven of 400 to 425 degrees for 40 to 60 minutes, depending on size of loaves.

The liquid used may be plain water, potato water, milk or part milk and part water. When potato water is used, reduce the salt by amount used in cooking potatoes. If milk is used it should be scalded and cooled.

Four cups of liquid yeast (see recipe in New Purify Cook Book) may be used in place of compressed yeast. If liquid yeast is used, reduce salt accordingly.

By the above method bread may be made in about 4½ hours. Equally good bread may be made with half the amount of yeast specified, but process will take longer.

When quick results are desired, double amount of yeast.

Cost Of Armaments

Writer Figures Out Per Capita Cost To Each Country

When George Bernard Shaw wrote "Arms and the Man" he was not dealing with the economics of the question, but a writer in the London Morning Post figured it out that way recently.

He finds that in Canada the cost is $12.4 a person; in New Zealand, $15.00; Denmark, $21.8; Australia, $24.00; Japan, $37.00; Belgium, $41.00; Italy (at war), $5; Great Britain, which defends a vast empire, $5.50; and the United States, $5.60.

No statistics are available for Germany. But the United States, for the first time since the war, has begun borrowing money for arms, battleships, and aircraft.

And if there is going to be an armaments race these figures will be much higher. The average British family of five pays nearly $50 a year for defence. Obviously Great Britain has strong reasons for striving so hard for peace. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Toast To The King

Orders Covering Correct Procedure Issued To Fleet

Fleet orders were issued covering the correct procedure in connection with the toast to the King.

The orders state that the health of His Majesty should be honored in all naval messes, whether on ship or on shore, on all occasions except when the National Anthem is played, when the toast should be drunk standing.

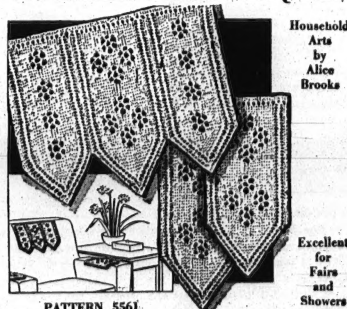

When toasts for foreign heads of states are included, they and that of the King should be drunk standing, whether the National Anthem is played or not, the orders provide.

The custom of drinking the loyal toast is said to have originated in the days of wooden warships, where accommodation was limited and there was insufficient headroom for a man to stand below decks. Any present-day visitor to the Nelson or the Victory at Portsmouth will appreciate this.

YOUR GARDEN

Even with a very small space, there is a big advantage in having something of a more or less permanent character like perennial flowers. With these there is something to build the rest of the garden around and there are less likely to be long blank periods when there is no bloom available. After many years general advice will not be needed because the gardener will go on extending here and there, specializing to some extent in favorites, just as the same persons will do in building up a private collection of books.

Lack of variety is the chief fault of the Canadian vegetable garden. Experts point out that there is no excuse for running out of lettuce early in the summer for example, when after the season for the leaf variety head lettuce could be grown and then during the hot weather the Cos type. For the "greens" enthusiasts a few plants of early and late varieties will provide an abundance of meals. It is worth investigating as it is also broad beans, which mature early indoors, summer, and later, Broccoli, a sort of refined cauliflower, Kohli Rabi, a refined turnip, Red cabbage, and yellow tomatoes will lend interest to the regular types and provide a slightly more varied diet. The red type of the latter can be used as a pimiento filling for sandwiches. In the melon class there are muskmelons and watermelons, certain varieties of which can be produced in a surprisingly wide area of Canada. Under the name of Little Indian Acorn or Table Queen squash, which is a big improvement over its red-skinned ancestor. Looks add variety to the onion family and tender white radish lengthen the season. There are also the peas, for example, the time of maturity will vary from about 50 days to 100 days. It is worth noting that variety it is advisable to include at least three. Early sowing is essential, but certain parts of the country a fall crop with a quick-growing variety is also possible. In corn, the very early Hawaiian types mature weeks ahead of the regular season and some of the late, both white and yellow, kinds are on until frost or even after.

Where one is fond of an abundance of bouquets, experienced gardeners advise growing a post of the type in straight rows among the vegetables or in a special cutting garden. Some well-chosen beds of mixed annuals are spoiled if too many flowers are picked and then again there are certain flowers which are not so attractive, but have little attractive foliage but beautiful blooms. These flowers will be grown behind the regular beds.

Protection In England

Although Inevitable It Is One Hundred Per Cent Effective

The stories that have been appearing in the American press, about Col. Lindbergh and his family living "unguarded" at their retreat in England, are in a sense misleading. The fact that their home is not surrounded by a cordon of uniformed police does not preclude the possibility that the police in their vicinity have taken special precautions against any possible attempt to molest them.

And they are guarded by the eternal vigilance of the highly organized and trained police force, which protects everyone in England by keeping an eye on what is going on all the time. The police of England, which English courts have put into the hearts of the criminally inclined.

Over here, where police protection is less efficiently organized and crooks thumb their noses at the law, we do not feel that we are "guarded" unless we see policemen all around us.

The invisible protection enjoyed in England is just as real and effective as it would be if it stood forth where all the world could see it—Detroit Free Press.

King Edward Also Acted As Guide For Companions

King Edward chieftain of the day his university retreat Cambridge for the 13th consecutive year's boat race, to pay an impromptu and informal visit to his old rooms at Magdalen College.

Like any ordinary alumnus, he visited the rooms that they had at the law, and acted as a guide for three companions, for whom he pointed out places of interest.

The king, visiting the college while motoring north, to spend a week-end at Hareley Hall, a guest of the Earl of Dudley.

I see by this paper that in some sections of the east a wife can be bought for $5.00. Isn't that awful? Well, I don't know. A good wife might be worth that.

GOD, THE FORGIVING FATHER

Lesson: Luke 15.

Devotional reading: Psalm 103:14.

Explanations And Comments

The Lost Son, Luke 15: 11-24. Now all the publicans and sinners were drawing near unto him to hear him, and both the Pharisees and the scribes murmured, saying, This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them. Thus Luke prefaced the record of the three parables of the lost in this fifteenth chapter. It was in response to the objections to his having any dealings with publicans and sinners voiced by the scribes and Pharisees, the self-righteous and the respectables. Jesus uttered these parables, the chief of which is the parable of the Prodigal Son, or of the Loving Father as it might well be called.

The younger of two sons demanded and obtained from his father his share of his father's money and went off to a distant country and wasted it all in riotous living. Finally his hunger forced him to go to a citizen there for help, and the latter gave him the job of feeding his swine. Even the hawks which he fed them looked tempting to him in his hunger; but when he came to himself, he saw the very meaning lying in wait to glaze or cement. "Very expressly it is its use here," observes Dr. Marvin R. Vincent, "implying that he forced himself upon the citizen, who took him into his service only upon persistent entreaty."

He came to himself. "That is a wonderful line when you consider it. Every man is a combination of many different personalities, a battlefield in which the fighters are his different selves. Jesus recognized that the best self is the real self" (Bruce Barton).

He had sinned against heaven, and in his sight. "We may injure ourselves by an evil, we may wrong our neighbor, but in speaking we can sin only against God; and the recognition of our evil as first and chiefly an offense against him, is of the essence of all true repentance, and distinguishes it broadly from remorse and all other kind of sorrow that may follow our evil deeds" (Trench).

A long way off the father saw him coming and ran to meet him and kiss him.

The ragged, shoeless, hungry boy began his way of confession, but before he could ask to be made a servant, the father stopped him and directed him to make haste and bring the best robe for his son, a ring for his finger and shoes for his feet, and the fattest of the calf killed for a feast of rejoicing.

Red Cross In Peace Time

Society Is Always Active And Ready To Help

Many people associate the Red Cross Society with war and fail to notice the great work it does in time of peace. The fact is the Red Cross is always active somewhere in every country where it has branches, and the organization is such that it is ready to leap to the call whenever and wherever there is an emergency.

This has been exemplified by the wonderful manner in which it has responded to the flood conditions in the United States. Most of the 400,000 homeless people are being cared for by the Red Cross, 171,000 being supported in Pennsylvania alone. A stupendous effort was set in motion at a moment's notice, and without it the municipal, state and federal authorities would have been in a desperate situation. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Reason For Custom

Sleeping cars are so arranged that passengers lie "head first" toward the engine because in earlier times soot and drafts were less troublesome than that way, explains an ambulance company which considers the opposite way of lying to be more restful in a moving conveyance.

Natives of India cleaned their teeth as far back as 1700 B.C. They used twigs for this purpose.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY — LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as a result, ruin his "spread". Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties.

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Torney to learn whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for his and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done. Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there is an explosion that wrecks the house, burns it and the plans and renders Link unconscious. He is rescued from the blaze by an employee.

Helen and Link ride to Rawhide for supplies and to obtain funds to carry out the dam project. They meet Roper, who greets Helen and offers to show her. Link goes to see the Sheriff, who tells him Buzz Hamilton has been paroled, and would arrive on the incoming stage, but that he thinks Link has made a mistake in getting Buzz released. Buzz Hamilton arrives back in Rawhide while Fleming and Helen are in the bank getting a loan for payment of wages for work on the dam. Roper Kilgo and Jackpot Mell meet him and he goes into the saloon with them. By the time his sister and Link come from the bank, Buzz has had several drinks, Roper has distorted the facts concerning the dam proposal to Buzz, making it appear that Link was trying to ruin him. Buzz, inflamed with liquor and anger, tries to throttle Fleming, but is thrown to the floor. Then Helen appears and tells Fleming she has been robbed of the $500 they had obtained from the bank.

(Now Go On With The Story)

"Link," she added on sudden impulse, "do you think this dam is going to bankrupt us?"

"Something in her worried tone made Fleming eager to go to any extreme to safeguard Helen and her property. "We'll come through," he said with confidence he did not quite feel. "We still have our steers to sell, and once we get cash for 'em we'll be fixed a lot better. I'll get Marty Buzz to make our beef go out first when shipping opens day tomorrow. And pay us cash. So, Helen, you better cut out what you're selling and get things all lined up."

He turned a little away. "I'm sorry about Buzz. I planned to give you the surprise of your life, getting him paroled. Well, it was a surprise, but not quite like I expected. Buzz came on the stage while we were with Otto Pieper, and knowing he headed right for the Half Moon, I sent you on home. By the time I got inside he was stuffed with wrong talk against us. Instead of being on our side he's plumb sure the dam won't turn out."

"Beats me," he exclaimed, scowling, "how folks can think that. Gosh, if anybody examines it, they've got to admit it'll work!"

"Of course it will work, Link," she listened a moment. "I hear Buzz, I think. Please let me know what goes on."

She was about to trip inside the ranch house when he stayed her. Kevin and Orissa sat waiting on their horses two hundred feet distant but they were conversing with faces turned away. "Helen," Fleming said heartily, "being as we're business partners, maybe I shouldn't say this. But business aside, I sort of—I hope you like me pretty well. Do you?"

She smiled. "Need you ask?"

"Then, then, would you—I've kicked self-consciously at a tuft of bunchgrass. For an instant he hesitated as if debating further speech; but then suddenly lost heart and turned to his horse.

"All right, boys," he called to Kevin and Orissa. "We'll talk wages pronto with your pals. Let's get to the Star Loop."

The three mile ride consumed but a short time. Sure enough, as they neared the two-room temporary ranch house, and the corral, bunkhouse, and small buildings, he made out more than a dozen men lounging about, smoking and watching him expectantly.

He swung from his mount and was approached by a muscular individual in overalls. Buster Townsend's usually cheerful face, round and strewn with freckles, now wore a serious look. "They're hellen' for pay," he told Link in a low tone. "I tried to hold 'em in, but all but about ten went on strike an' said they were over their heads. They'll hand over their dough."

"We want cash an' we want it quick!" rasped a scowling workman who guessed Townsend's words.

"We're entitled to it, ain't we boys?" put in a burly, dark-browed fellow, addressing the crowd. This man Link knew for Gyp Valle, ex-convict and local bully. A great mass of crinkly black hair escaped Valle's misshapen sombrero, spewing out in the careless mode of a half-breed Indian. Gyp's squinting eyes were hard and shifty, and striped over his overalls was a pair of walnut-butt sixguns, although in his capacity of dam worker there was no need whatever to carry weapons. Murmurs of assent greeted Valle, and the growl of other men made a rumbling sound like thunder across the far distant peaks of the mountain range. But Fleming, with a look of cheerful confidence, strode to the ranch house stoop, the men following sullenly at his heels. On this slight eminence he turned to address them.

"Orissa and Kevin told me how you feel, and I don't blame you, boys. But don't think I'm not in good faith about this wages proposition. I went—"

"To hell with good faith!" broke in Gyp Valle. "Give us hard cash!" Plainly he was foremost in stirring up dissension. Buster Townsend's fists doubled and he seemed about to challenge Gyp until with a slight shake of the head Link warned him. "What, the heck's you talkin' about? You don't work on this dam any more. I fired you this mornin' for a lazy, good-for-nothin' loafer!"

The man's powerful chest heaved. "I'm owed wages!" he roared. "An' by gosh, I mean to get my rights!"

"You're owed a good slam in the nose," Buster retorted belligerently. "Yuh tried to test a sluzer on us, yuh bound! Lettin' 'em drop 20 feet. I've a good mind to—"

"Hold on, boys!" It was news that Valle had been discharged, that he had attempted sabotage. But Fleming disregarded this point for the moment. "I started to say," he proceeded calmly, "that Miss Helen and I went to Rawhide this afternoon to get your payroll."

"But didn't get it, eh?" guessed a man named Ferguson.

"We got it, all right—eight hundred dollars. But I had to stay in town to meet Buzz Hamilton. You see, I got Buzz paroled to me from prison as a surprise for his sister. I gave her the money and she started here as fast as her horse could travel."

"Boys," he said soberly, "I'm shore sorry. Helen—Miss Hamilton—she's a bandana mask, stepped out of the trees at Iron Spring, and stopped her at the point of a gun. She put up a game fight, but of course he was stronger. He grabbed your eight hundred and got away!"

"Held up?"

"She got robbed?"

"Then our money's gone!"

These and similar exclamations broke from the crowd of irrigation men, who by phrasing it as their eight hundred dollars, he had secured a point.

"Yes, she got robbed and pretty much bruised up, fightin' for your rights. Sheriff Stephen said the case right now, and there's a darned good chance of nabbin' him quick. He'll sure get the limit for holdin' up a woman an' taking money earned by the sweat of your brow!"

An inspiration prompted him to stride down to Sam Walters. "Sam, I'll pay every cent I owe you if you give me time. Nobody ever said Link Fleming went back on his word. On account of that robbery I'm askin' you to trust me awhile longer."

Plainly taken back by this daring candor, Sam gnawed reflectively at a mustache end. "Yuh liable to go busted?"

"Whoever spread that story lied." The workman hesitated, conscious of all eyes on him. Then he saw Fleming's hand outstretched, and he gasped it. "Pay me up, Link, soon's yuh can. I'll wait."

His pulse speeded in triumph. Without turning from the spot, he addressed Chunky Hokanson. "Are you willing to trust me after a piece of hard luck I couldn't help?"

The other's eyes wavered. "Shore, Link." And he turned away.

But Gyp Valle with Ferguson at his side interposed before Fleming could speak to the next man. "Yuh can pull that on those guys," Gyp sneered roughly, "but yuh can't soft soap me. I want my money an' I want it now!"

Townsend shouldered his way close, fearing trouble. "Buster!" he demanded the Star Loop owner indignantly. "Are you sure about this hombre tryin' to wreck that sluice gate?"

"Plumb shore!" came the prompt answer. "Yuh dirty low-down Gila!"

Wanted To Play Safe

Man Withdrew Charge Against Son Of His Barber

Herman Gerofsky, a New York factory owner, does not believe in taking risks. After he had had Joseph Sansone arrested on a charge of theft from the factory he decided when the case came into court, not to proceed with the charge. The magistrate asked him to explain. "Well," said Mr. Gerofsky, "Joseph's father is my barber. Twice a week he comes to my hair and my throat is at his mercy. Nevertheless the magistrate decided to hold Joseph on a charge of theft."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sore, weak and listless. A more powerful movement doesn't "take care" at the source. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and at 'em." Bile flows and poisons are made the bile flow freely. They do the work of natural bile but have no harmful effect in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Unobtainable unless you order by name.

Canada's Sea Tonnage

Is Now Only One Third Of Fifty Years Ago

Canada's tonnage in seagoing vessels was only one-third of what it was 50 years ago, Fred Bridges, port warden at Sorel, Que., told the Ottawa bureau after a visit to Papua and the Institute of Canada. Total tonnage of seagoing and inland water vessels dropped from three per cent of the world total in 1886 to 1 1/4 per cent. In 1935, in comparison, Japan's tonnage has increased from one-half per cent 50 years ago to six per cent. Change from sail to steam, he believed, was the cause of tonnage decline in Canada.

Gold In New Guinea

Will Provide Mining For At Least Twenty Years

New Guinea has sufficient gold to provide mining for 20 years, according to Sir George Pearce, Australian Minister in Control of Territories, in a report to the Commonwealth Prime Minister on his return to Canberra after a visit to Papua and New Guinea. "The fields will be one of our principal producing centres for many years," he said.

Shows Improvement

Consistent improvement has been effected in Canada in the preparation of fleece wool since 1913 when public attention was first directed to the means of quality improvement and the manner of preparation for market. At present all commercial wool in Canada is sold in the grease, and the fleeces rolled and tied intact as they are shorn.

Little Helps For This Week

Call unto me and I will answer thee, and show thee the great and mighty things which thou knowest not. Jer. 33:33.

No voice of prayer to Thee can But swift as light Thy love replies; Not always what we ask, indeed, But O most kind, just what we need.

If you have any trial that seems intolerable, pray that it may be relieved or changed. There is no harm in that. We may pray for anything not wrong in itself with perfect freedom, if we do not pray selfishly. One disabled from duty by sickness may pray for health that he may do his work, or if we have a beating sin we may pray to be delivered from it in order to serve God and man, and not be the one to mislead and annoy. But the answer to the prayer may be, as it was to Paul, not the removal of the thorn but a growing insight into its meaning and value. The voice of God in our soul may show us, as we look up to Him, that his strength is enough to enable us to bear it.

Getting Something Done

Manitoba's Back-To-Land Movement Has Proved Success

While in other parts of the Dominion there has been a great deal of theorizing about placing unemployed on the land, the Manitoba Government has been dealing with the question in a practical way—getting something done. A report recently presented to the Western Province Legislature indicated that 772 families have been placed on the land, and that of these only 137 have failed to get along and abandoned their holdings. Expenditure on this plan to date has been $481,776 and of this the Dominion Government contributed $123,000, or about 25 per cent. It is explained that because these people been supported by direct relief the cost would have been something like $200,000 more than the total amount expended in placing them on the land including cost of equipment.—Toronto Globe.

Outlook Is Better

The outlook for Saskatchewan farmers for the year 1936 is one of optimism. Good horses are scarce and prices are likely to be high for several years. In the sheep industry prices of lambs and wool promise to be satisfactory. In the market for poultry products the outlook is indefinite but little change is anticipated.

BELLYACHING

There seems to be general agreement that everybody is in duty bound to be a good sport or a he-man; but when you have been housed up all winter with a bad cold and bronchitis, you get tired of trying.

When callers ask how you feel, you know they don't give a darn and are only trying to be polite. You know, also, that a good sport should smile cheerfully and say he is feeling fine, thank you.

But you are tired of lying. And when they ask how you feel, you cut loose and tell them the profane truth. You go into details. You make it sound as dreadful as possible. You fairly wallow in self-pity.

And the moment you start talking, your caller's eyes begin to glaze and his look of sympathy fades and his shoulders droop and you know he is suffering more than you are. He is bored stiff. And before you quit talking and let him escape, he wishes you would die and go to hell where you belong.

We are all like that. A few years ago, one of my friends lost everything and fell so low he couldn't even see the way back up. Then he developed the habit of talking about his troubles and biddings for sympathy.

I knew it was my duty to cheer him up, or at least listen to his endless tale of woe, but I couldn't do it. Ten minutes spent in his presence made me so blue and depressed that I wished to crawl in a hole somewhere and die. So I dodged him. It was disloyal, and I felt ashamed of it, but I dodged him as though he had leprosy.

Everybody feels that way. We just can't help it. And that explains why many a deserving fellow fails in business.

He has a grouch and fusses about everything and curses everybody and seems so sore and disgruntled and out-of-humor that nobody can bear to hear him.

He may be a good fellow in many ways, and his friends may long to tell him what is wrong; but everybody is afraid to tell him the truth, so he goes blindly on to his doom. The more business he loses, the more he grouches; the more he grouches, the more business he loses. People simply can't stand his endless belly-aching.

You may have a diseased liver and family trouble and other reasons to hate the world, but you've got to hide your sourness and look cheerful and radiate sunshine if you expect people to hang around. Nobody with sound legs will stay long in the vicinity of a whiner or a grouch.—Robert Quillen in Fountain Inn Tribune.

Education that envisages merely the brain is a lopsided thing. To be complete, to fulfill its true purpose, it must equally envisage the character. It must foster taste and seek to minister to that subtle, undefinable and comprehensive thing which we call the soul.—Otto Kahn.

Mrs. R. M. Paterson, sister of Mr. A. L. R. Davidson, government vendor at Coleman, passed away at Arrowtown, District of Otago, New Zealand, recently, at the age of 61. A clipping from the Arrowtown Journal gives a lengthy obituary of Mrs. Paterson, whose long and useful life was summed up in the following words: "The life and character of Ethel Paterson have been a benediction to many, and fragrant memories of her friendship and love will be of an abiding nature."

Local and General Items

The shortest sentence in the Bible is "Jesus wept." The shortest sentence in the Alberta government's vocabulary is "more taxes."

Pardon us, folks, if you failed to receive your regular dividend checks last week end. Our right hand was sore.

Since announcing a couple of weeks ago the receipt of a batch of dividends, labelled Social Credit, a number of local folks are so jealous of us they will not speak.

A local Scotchman has discovered that by removing his false teeth he can easily avoid talking. Yesterday he accepted the invitation of a Yankee friend to have a glass of beer. Finishing the beer, he removed his molars.

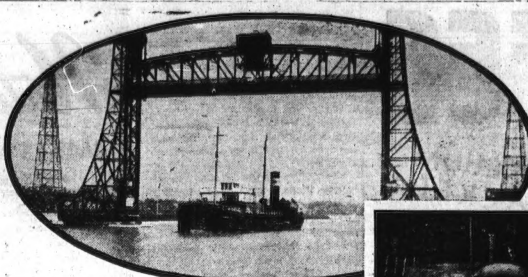

An item noticed by a friend of ours in an advertising sheet last week—and which by the way was considered a "literary product"—read: "We don't claim to be weather prophets, etc." simply caused us to feel that the weather was about the only thing Mr. Aberhart has not attempted to force a "profit" from.

A comely colored girl had just been baptized in the river. As she came to the surface she cried: "Bless de Lawd, I've saved. Las' night Ah was in de ahms of Satan, but to-night—Ah'm in de ahms of de Lawd." "Sistah," came a baritone voice from the shore, "how is you all fixed up fo' tomorra evening?"

Suppose the holder of a $1000 Alberta bond does get his interest cut from 6% to 3%. That's only eight cents a day loss. So said Premier Aberhart in his address last Sunday. In fact it is a mere flea-bite if one is getting $27 a day for being a Social Credit Premier. To the person who saved the thousand dollars, it means a loaf of bread per day, or the month's gas bill or the annual holiday.—Lethbridge Herald.

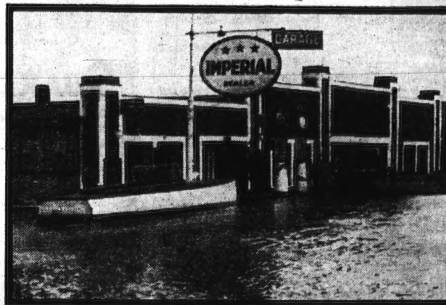

A doctor was called to attend a servant girl who had taken a dose of poison. He asked her why. She replied: "I was feeling rather seedy, so I opened the Missus' medicine chest. There was a bottle marked 'Three drops for an infant, six for an adult, a teaspoonful for an emetic.' I wasn't an infant, and I wasn't sure about being an adult, so I thought I must be an emetic. That's what made me take a spoonful."

Rumor is persistent to the effect that the government this year intends to enforce a ban on Sunday fishing. What good can be accomplished by the move is difficult to understand. Fully 75 per cent of permits issued in past years were to those whose only opportunity to take in this recreation was Sunday, and if a ban is to be effected it is reasonable to expect a drop of 75 per cent in the sale of permits. Rather than buy permits in Alberta, there would be many who would go to British Columbia to spend the Sunday. Why not go a little further and interfere with all pleasurable Sunday pastimes—ban motor-ing, sleeping, golfing, smoking, court-ing, praying, etc.

FIRST AID TO THE ANXIOUS

The editor of a daily newspaper comes to the rescue of a poor young Benedict:

"Replying to your question as to how a man should stand at his own wedding, I must gently but firmly assert that he should stand perpendicularly erect. While it is possible that he might go through the ordeal more comfortably if permitted to recline at full length on the Persian rug, with his head secreted under the piano, such a position is not commended by the best authorities. You should also stand still; it spoils the aplomb of the occasion and is hard on the embolism of the bishop for the groom to go racing like a young Lochinvar or a wild gazelle off across the scenery in the direction of the tall timber, or to otherwise so comport himself that it becomes necessary to blindfold him into matrimony. It is not a bad notion, either, while you are at it, to stand well with the bride's relatives."—Unidentified clipping.

MIGHT HAVE HAPPENED ANYWHERE

It was one of mother's busiest days. Her small son came in with his trousers torn. His mother helped him to change to another pair, but in an hour or so he was back, his trousers torn again. His mother ordered him to go upstairs remove the trousers and mend them himself.

Some time later, she thought of him and went upstairs to see how he was getting on. The torn trousers were lying on a chair, but there was no sign of Johnny. Returning downstairs, she noticed the cellar door was open, so she called down loudly and sternly: "Are you running around down there without your trousers on?" A deep voice answered: "No, madam, I'm reading the gas meter."—Efficiency Magazine.

The long and tedious winter is now over. During the Easteride we were greeted with sunny days, when winter seemed suddenly to burst into spring. People are now busying themselves in raking and cleaning the winter's accumulation of litter from their yards and gardens, and burning up trash in bonfires. The Century of Science

Research work now being carried on in the laboratories of the world devoted to industrial progress and advancement of scientific knowledge is unlocking vast reservoirs of hitherto hidden facts and data so such an extent that their practical application to man's needs and welfare is bound to profoundly change habits and modes of life and work in the future.

Old and well accepted theories in the realms of astronomy, chemistry, physics, medical science, biology and other fields of science are being shattered almost daily as a result of the work which is being carried on by silent, be-spectated men and women in these research workshops and so rapidly are new discoveries being made and converted to the use of mankind that those who predict that the present century will go down in history as an era of scientific achievement are speaking with undisputed authority.

In fact, the achievements of the first third of the present century are sufficient in themselves to substantiate the claim for such an assertion even if, for some unknown and unpredictable reason, the work in this field were to be brought to an abrupt halt now.

One does not have to search far to find reasons for this remarkable advance into the sphere of the hitherto unknown and to explain why so much that has remained hidden for centuries is now being revealed in so great abundance.

One of the reasons is the large sums of money which have been made available for the prosecution of such work by wealthy philanthropists. Another is the discovery by commercial organizations that it pays them to devote a percentage of their earnings to the conduct of research work to assist them in unearthing ways and means of improving their products and of reducing the costs of production to enable them to achieve a paramount place in their field or to achieve it. Another is the now well known fact that almost every new discovery, or the search for it, opens the door for another one and often enough paves the way for several more. Thus, the work is not only progressive but cumulative and in more than mathematical ratio, something like rolling up a snowball.

Still another reason is the fact that so frequently, a discovery in one field of endeavor results in the perfection of new equipment which makes it possible to delve deeper into the mysteries of some other scientific realm or some other school of activity.

And these do not exhaust the reasons. There are others referred to recently by Mrs. O. Lazarus. Writing in a recent issue of the Christian Science Monitor an article dealing with developments in the arena of natural science this author said:

"Natural science arose partly out of man's desire to conquer nature and partly from his insatiable curiosity. From the earliest times man has never been content to live by bread alone. It had that within it which led him to seek out the mysteries of the world around him. It is this curiosity which has forced men to make instruments which have enabled him to sweep the recesses of the starry heavens; to delve among the rocks in order to read from them the history of the earth and those who have lived on it in ages past. In his eagerness he has even penetrated into the heart of matter and seen it dissolve into radiation."

The same writer sheds an interesting sidelight on the effect such work has on the minds of those who make new discoveries, when she says: "Every time he (the researcher) has forced open the locked doors in the Palace of Knowledge, he has become humbler, less certain of his at-one-time unshakable faith in the 'reality' of those things which his hands could touch and his eyes see."

It is unfortunate that in Canada sufficient recognition is not always given to the men and women who are devoting a lifetime to unlocking the mysteries of science for the benefit of the country and her people; at least, that is too often the case with those who are prosecuting their work under government aegis. As a result, more adequate remuneration sometimes proves too tempting and they are lured away south of the international boundary to the great loss of this country.

When the benefits which accrue to the country as a result of the development of a rust resistant wheat—to quote an illustration—are weighed in the balance against the remuneration these trained experts receive it is not surprising if better offers from elsewhere for their services are sometimes accepted.

Completing her first season in one of the north's new mining camps, Mrs. E. N. Dunn, a bride of one year, says there is nothing like joy-riding in a dog sleigh.

The young woman, wife of Dr. E. N. Dunn, resident doctor at Goldfields, Sask., accompanied her husband to the Lake Athabasca mining field last fall.

During a brief stopover at Edmonton after a long arduous flight from the northern mining town, she said, "I enjoy the life very much. It's all very novel, and it's well worth trying."

Goldfields has a pleasant social life, she added. About 30 women and 300 men comprise the camp. Bridge, dancing and dog sleigh riding are in great favor. In addition she often travels with her husband.

Going In For Ice Cream

London Is Preparing For Big Sale This Summer

Warm weather ice cream fashions are being determined at the Ice Cream and Dairy exhibition at the Crystal Palace, the London News-Chronicle remarks:

"This summer, it seems, we shall consume at least 50,000,000 gallons of ice cream, so that the rehearsal now in progress is thoroughly justified."

"It will be bought from penny-in-the-slot machines, in special paper bags, in tubes of chocolate and in new wafer wafers, which make it look as if you get more for your penny than you actually do."

"And it will be better ice cream. The milk marketing board has arranged for ice cream manufacturers to buy milk at bulk wholesale prices. Milk powder from abroad has been widely used so far."

"The immense engineering industry that has grown in recent years to meet the needs of the big milk distributive combines should give those now engaged in the milk prices inquiry some idea of where the money goes."

Richly Clad Mummy Found

Is Believed To Be Daughter Of Great Pharaoh Cheops

The sumptuously-clad mummy of a princess of the Fourth Dynasty (3733-3566 B.C.), believed to be the daughter of the great Pharaoh Cheops, who built the second pyramid, has been discovered by Egyptian archaeologists.

The mummy lay in a limestone sarcophagus, in an undisturbed tomb whose location was not revealed in the announcement of the find. Dressed in bridal raiment, the princess wore a golden diadem, two necklaces of golden beads, anklets and sandals.

A gold-plated copper belt circled her waist and the fingers of her left hand were encased in gold as well, it was said.

Prof. Selim Hassan of Cairo University, directed the excavations which resulted in the discovery. He said the tomb apparently had never been pillaged by marauders, like most monuments of ancient Egypt.

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about "ASPIRIN."

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate "Aspirin" among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this:

One Of Longest Electric Tracks Will Be Completed Next Summer

Rapid progress with the electrification of the Southern Railway's main line to Portsmouth harbor makes it likely that the whole scheme, costing nearly $15,000,000, will be completed by July, 1937.

Some 95 route miles, corresponding to 242 single track miles, are to be converted, and when finished the 74 miles from London to Portsmouth will be one of the longest electric tracks in Britain.

The present longest stretch is the London to Eastbourne, Hastings and Ore section opened last July.

Tourists Will See Things

Parry Sound, Ontario, To Have Totem Pole Traffic Light

The eyes of a moose, alternately blinking red and green from atop a mighty totem pole, will help direct tourist traffic through Parry Sound, Ontario, this year. Plans for the totem pole traffic light were explained to the Ontario Good Roads convention by J. M. Daly, Indian agent from Parry Sound. The pole will be a vast affair, facing the highway, and the images carved on it, from top to bottom, will include the moose, a bear, a deer, two geese, a canoe, a tepee, a school house, and a church. The eyes of the moose, co-ordinated with traffic signals, will be the only animated portion.

Trying Old Experiment

New Jersey Doctor To Use Surgical Grafting Principle

Sixteen-year-old John Seely's hope for artificial restoration of the arms he lost last November under the wheels of a train at Nutley, New Jersey, rested to-day on application of a 65-year-old surgical grafting principle.

A Newark orthopedic surgeon, starting with an operation at Beth Israel Hospital, expects to apply the discovery of an Italian physician, Vanghetti, about 1870, using muscle grafts to connect artificial limbs.

The surgeon, who has asked his name be withheld, has been engaged by the crippled children's committee of the Nutley Elks Lodge. As he described the operation, a flap of the patient's skin is drawn into a tube and inserted under the muscle. This operation will be performed twice on each of the stumps of Seely's arms.

When the tissues have healed, he said, cineplastic arms would be attached to the flaps. The artificial arms and fingers then would be operated with the flexing of the muscles.

New Device Invented

Artificial Ear Gives Effect Of Sound On Human System

An artificial ear, for the exact measurement of sound, and its effect on the human system, has been invented by an electrical firm at Prague. It is to be used by the Czechoslovak Ministry of Health in its investigations into the noise problem. Previous sound-measuring devices are stated either to have been too subjective, which has led to inaccurate results being obtained and difficulty in calculation, or they have not measured the true effect of various sounds on the delicate mechanism of the human ear. The new device, it is claimed, represents exactly, in an easily measurable form, the way in which sound affects the ear of a living person.

Prediction Made That Smoke Will Be Discharged Into Sea

Funnels ocean liners in the near future was a prediction made by John Johnson, chief engineer of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd., addressing the Institution of Mechanical Engineers at London, England, recently.

Speaking on the future of steam propulsion, Mr. Johnson said that smoke and gases from the furnaces would be used until they were almost cold, the heat extracted from them being put to work.

The gases would then be washed with sea water, and, when clean, they would be discharged into the sea just above the water level.

The doctors had great difficulty in getting a negro soldier, who had been badly wounded by shell-fire, to take an anesthetic. He seemed worried about something, and urged them to get to work without an anesthetic, as he wanted to watch them.

ROYAL ASSENT GIVEN TO BILLS BEFORE RECESS

Ottawa.—Parliament started a 12-day Easter recess after Chief Justice Duff gave royal assent to the accumulated legislation passed through both houses.

In a last-minute spurt, the government bill to establish a national employment commission was rushed through the house and senate, giving the administration free scope during the adjournment to make necessary appointments and start it going.

Left among unfinished business was the government's relief bill which, among other provisions, would enable the Dominion to sign direct relief agreements with the provinces. The agreements lapsed March 31, the end of the fiscal year, and payments which were increased 75 per cent. for the winter months were cut 15 per cent. in April. In the meantime, it is assumed payments will continue from month to month until new agreements are negotiated but the rates have not been disclosed.

A supply bill of $51,167,000, representing the supplementary estimates for the year ending in March, went through both houses. The most important of the bills receiving royal assent was the one ratifying the Canadian-American trade treaty.

Premier King told the house practically all important legislation has been presented to the house but he was unable to say definitely when the budget will come down. It has been forecast for the first week in May.

The house has been in session slightly more than two months and it probably will last into June, depending largely on the budget and the attitude of the opposition toward the government bill restoring a board of directors for the Canadian National Railways.

Another bill that received royal assent was one to distribute $65,000 among western farmers as a result of 1930 pool operations, both wheat and coarse grains. It looked earlier in the day as if it would not be included on the assent list but the house accepted senate amendments and all was serene. Distribution of the money now is only a matter of time.

Wheat Stocks Sold

Board Disposes Of 5,000,000 Bushels, No. 2 Northern

Winnipeg.—All stocks of old crop No. 2 Northern wheat held by the Canadian wheat board in eastern position were believed disposed of when the board sold 5,000,000 bushels of this grade to export interests. It was emphasized, however, that the sale, the largest in the cash grain market in some time, did not mean the wheat had been sold for movement out of the Dominion. It represented only a change in ownership, officials said.

Traders on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange were of the opinion that there was a prospective demand for the wheat and that exporters were getting into a position to meet the demand. They expected the grain would be exported as soon as navigation opens.

League To Probe Report That Italy Uses Poison Gas

Geneva.—The League of Nations "Committee of 13" appointed a sub-committee of jurists to investigate charges that Italy was using poison gas in Ethiopia.

At the same time, the Committee of 13—which is made up of every member of the league council except Italy—empowered its President, Salvador De Madariaga, of Spain, to try to learn Premier Mussolini's terms for making peace.

He was instructed to talk to Baron Pompeo Aloisi, the Italian delegate to the League, on his arrival at Geneva.

Field Marshal Chetwode Says It Would Be Madness To Take Risks

London.—In considering the defence of India it would be madness to take risks, declared Field Marshal Sir Philip Chetwode in addressing the East India association. Sir Philip has just completed a five-year term as commander-in-chief of the army in India.

"The Indian frontier," the field marshal said, "is vital, for it is within touch of the Russian menace which advances and recedes according to the state of the rest of the world and Russian politics."

"Nobody now imagines the likelihood of war between the British Empire and Russia, but as was seen in the last year, international situations arise rapidly. The Russians have the biggest and possibly the best equipped army and air force in the world."

British War Film

Has Been Temporarily Banned By The Movie Censor

London.—A film depicting the horrors of war was shown privately here after it had been banned for the time being at least by the Marquess of Crewe, movie censor.

Beside actual warfare scenes, the film gives the views on war of the average Englishman, ranging from businessmen to charwomen. It ends by appealing to the public to intervene with their respective parliament members and obtain their pledge always to vote against war.

Suppression of the film caused much criticism. H. G. Wells told newspapers "it would be outrageous if a film of such public importance were suppressed."

In the face of criticism, Lord Crewe has decided to submit the film to the ministry of war for its approval or rejection.

Further Discussions Likely

Finance Minister Plans Conference With Governments Of West

Ottawa.—Both Finance Minister Dunning and Premier T. D. Pattullo of British Columbia were non-committal after their conversations on financial questions. It was intimated no definite steps would be taken with respect to the problem of Dominion-provincial financial relations until there had been further discussions between the finance minister and governments of the western provinces.

Such conferences will have to await the prorogation of provincial legislatures. Mr. Dunning said, and no definite plans had been made. In the meantime the minister has been in communication with provincial premiers.

Cattle Must Be Treated

Announcement Is Made Of New Ruling On Exports

Ottawa.—Cattle exported from Canada to England, Wales and Scotland between March 15 and June 30 each year must be treated with a preparation which will reduce the hazard of introducing the warble fly, according to an announcement issued here by the department of agriculture.

Canadian cattle for export to the British Isles will be treated by officials of the health of animals branch of the agriculture department or under official supervision. Treatment will be applied at the time the cattle are tagged at the shipping or export point. A certificate will be issued declaring the cattle have been treated.

Civil List Completed

Committee Submits Report On Provision For Royal Family

London.—The select committee appointed by the House of Commons to decide the amount of the king's civil list has completed its deliberations and now will report to the house.

A bill will be founded on the report, providing for the needs of the king, Queen Mary, the Duke and Duchess of York, and other members of the royal family. It will also provide for the contingency of the king's marriage.

Figures arrived at by the committee are being kept a close secret.

Italy Enters Protest

Geneva.—A protest against the alleged bombardment of Italian Red Cross ambulances by Ethiopian artillery was received from the Italian government by Joseph Avello, secretary-general of the League of Nations.

Spain Profits By Sanctions

Supplies Canada With Goods Formerly Imported From Italy

Toronto.—League of Nations economic sanctions against Italy have been effective as far as Canada's business with Italy is concerned, a report of the committee on import and export trade of the Ontario Retail Grocers' Association said.

The report said there had been a cessation of Canadian imports from Italy of olive oil, anchovies, shelled pistachio nuts, shelled almonds, filberts in the shell, sorrento walnuts, lemons, limes and maraschino cherries.

The sanctions have been of considerable benefit to Spain, which now supplies most of the articles mentioned above.

FRENCH TROOPS STAND GUARD ON EASTERN BORDER

Paris.—The French government has ordered 175,000 troops—about half of the country's peace-time army—held under the colors until further notice pending outcome of negotiations to settle the Rhineland crisis.

The order, announced in a decree signed by War Minister Gen. Louis Felix Maurin, applies to troops whose term of service would ordinarily end April 15. Most of them are stationed in the steel-and-concrete Maginot defence line on the eastern border, fully manned since Chancellor Adolf Hitler's armed strike into the Rhineland. France's peace-time army is about 375,000 men.

The number of conscripts available to France during 1936, 1937 and 1938—the "lean years" resulting from the low birthrate during the war years of 1916, 1917 and 1918—is far below the previous averages. The move was understood to be linked with partial mobilization moves considered by the French government during the week prior to the Rhineland occupation in March, following confidential reports from Andre Francois-Poncet, French ambassador at Berlin.

It was asserted that the Maginot line can only be considered fully effective when it is manned by thoroughly trained men. Several months are required before the men become familiarized with the numerous military intricacies of the subterranean and other forts of the defence bulwark.

A large number of French troops were immediately despatched to eastern frontier towns and villages following the Rhineland coup. These moves would have been rendered ineffective by the withdrawal of 175,000 troops on April 15, military experts said.

The move, it was said, is designed to satisfy French security demands and to uphold France's prestige before Europe during the current negotiations.

Ask Higher Pay

Edmonton.—Renewing requests for higher pay and increased privileges in the provincial relief camps, a delegation of seven relief camp workers arrived here to seek an interview with government officials and, if possible, with Hon. W. W. Cross, minister in charge of relief.

WHEN SARRAUT DEFIED HITLER

M. Albert Sarraut, Prime Minister of France, is shown at his desk when he broadcast a speech to the nation following Hitler's remilitarization of the Rhineland. During the broadcast, M. Sarraut stated that France was determined not to overlook Germany's breach of the Locarno Treaty, and rejected with scorn Hitler's offer of a new pact to replace the Locarno Pact.

May Call At Halifax

Nova Scotians Likely To See Liner Queen Mary

Halifax.—Great Britain's bid for the "blue ribbon" of the Atlantic, the new liner Queen Mary, may visit Nova Scotia this summer.

"The government of Nova Scotia has been endeavoring for months to have the Queen Mary call at Halifax in order that the people of this province may have an opportunity of viewing the world's premier liner," Hon. A. S. MacMillan, minister of highways, said in a statement.

"The information we have at present is that while a cruise to Halifax during her early voyage will not be possible, there is a distinct possibility that later in the season this ship will be arranged."

The 80,000-ton liner built by the Cunard White Star Line will attempt to wrest the supremacy of the Atlantic from the French liner Normandie on May 27 when she starts her dash across the ocean from Southampton to New York.

Late Seeding In Alberta

But Crop Yield Is Not Likely To Be Affected

Calgary.—Farmers of Alberta faced the prospect of a late seeding season, possibly the latest in 10 years, particularly in central and northern Alberta, according to a survey made by local agriculturists. There need be no great apprehension yet, however, regarding the possible crop yield, they said.

In many areas fields were under deep snow and it will be many days before the land is fit to work. Warmer weather, however, brought about a delay in snow-clearing.

Last year at April 30 eight per cent of the land had been seeded and the 10-year average at April 30 was 35 per cent. In 1928, one of Alberta's best crop years, only six per cent was seeded by April 30.

Tenders Resignation

Victoria.—Ill health has caused Lieutenant-Governor J. W. Fordham Johnson to tender to the British Columbia government his resignation which has been accepted by Premier Pattullo. It was announced at Government House. The resignation is to take effect at the end of April, three months before the Lieutenant-Governor's term would normally expire.

Coronation Date

Will Be Proclaimed In London With Much Ceremony

London.—The date, in May, 1937, upon which the coronation of King Edward will take place will be proclaimed next month with much the same ceremony as attended the proclamation of His Majesty upon his accession to the throne last January. Heralds and pursuivants will attend the great officers of the College of Arms, who will make the announcement at the same historic four points in London from which the accession proclamation was delivered. These are St. James' palace, Charing Cross, Temple Bar and the Royal Exchange.

The actual date will probably be announced in the House of Commons by Prime Minister Baldwin on the same day as the Duke of Norfolk, in his capacity as earl marshal, issues the proclamation.

Ends First Session

Social Credit Government Prorogued

Edmonton.—First session of the world's first Social Credit government came to a close April 7 when the Alberta house was prorogued by Hon. W. L. Walsh, lieutenant-governor.

In session since February 6, a period of practically nine weeks, the members of the eighth legislature added 102 new statutes to the provincial list at this first session.

PLAN TO ENLARGE NEWS SERVICE OVER THE RADIO

Ottawa.—Establishment of facilities whereby radio listeners may be given more frequent Canadian news broadcasts was recommended to the parliamentary committee on radio by a delegation representing the radio committee of the Canadian Press.

In a brief which declared news services on the air brought into Canada from United States lacked British character and were often inaccurate and misleading, three alternative suggestions were laid before the committee as a means of increasing the present single hourly Canadian coast-to-coast news broadcast to three or four.

W. B. Preston, managing director of the Branford Exporter and president of the Canadian Press, told the committee if facilities were provided for daytime national news broadcasting the Canadian Press would furnish the news bulletins free, as it now does the single nightly broadcast.

Because of expense involved the coast-to-coast network of the Canadian radio commission operates only during evening hours. Members of the committee, who displayed a keen interest in the subject agreed that increased broadcasts of a Canadian and British character were desirable. The matter will be discussed further when the committee meets again after the Easter parliamentary recess.

E. Norman Smith, vice-president of the Ottawa Journal and honorary president of the Canadian Press, and J. P. B. Livesey, Toronto, general manager, joined with Mr. Preston in submitting the argument.

The commons committee was assured there was no desire to prohibit or censor news brought in from outside Canada for rebroadcast in the Dominion, but it was felt desirable to provide an adequate Canadian news service over the air as an offsetting feature.

Not all foreign news broadcasts were objectionable and some of them were admirable, the committee was told, but they were not Canadian of British, and in many cases were inaccurate.

Mr. Smith declared newspaper publishers knew better than any others that news broadcasts from other countries were often inaccurate and misleading. Editors were constantly being called by telephone to confirm news heard on the air that was absolutely without foundation in fact.

Mr. Livesey said the late war had shown the most effective form of propaganda lay in selection of news. He gave an instance of how recently a statement by Prime Minister Baldwin had been altered in a news program to present a meaning altogether different to that given in the original statement.

The delegation also asked that the clause protecting the Canadian Press and Canadian newspapers from theft of news for broadcasting purposes be continued.

SECURITY PLAN OF FRANCE SAID NOT ACCEPTABLE

London.—France's all-Europe security plan received a lukewarm reception in the press. Newspapers generally urged the British government to resume its efforts to bring the powers together for the purpose of devising a European settlement.

The French proposals, said the Daily Telegraph, "in part are wholly impracticable. Recent experience in international complications made it clear that a police force contributed to by all nations is a motion that has only the most remote relation to actual conditions in Europe. The French reply throws back upon the British government the task of exploring the path to negotiation. Until negotiations can be begun the several visions of a pacified Europe are as mocking mirages."

"The Daily Herald said the immediate problem was to prepare the way for a collective effort to incorporate the French and German plans, with such other proposals as other nations may contribute, 'into a practical, generally acceptable whole'."

The Times said "doubts will be felt whether all the French suggestions are practicable. Europe can hardly be described as ripe, or ready for the large renunciations of sovereignty demanded, but the suggestions as a whole constitute an elaborate, far-reaching plan not to be met with purely destructive criticism, but to be examined together with the German proposals. At the present moment, however, the immediate purpose must be to clear away the obstacles in the way of discussion of a permanent organization for ordered peace."

Church Hospital Burned

Nurses Played Heroic Part In Fire At Akilavik

Akilavik, N.W.T.—Hospital of the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada was destroyed by fire here. Patients housed in the building were removed safely to other sections of the settlement. There was no loss of life.

Three Toronto-trained nurses played a heroic part in rescuing all the patients. Miss M. A. Solomon, Toronto, was in charge of the hospital. Miss Ruth Hamilton, of Peterborough, and Miss Patricia Hamilton, of Hamilton, were the other graduate nurses at the hospital.

The original eight-bed hospital was given by Col. and Mrs. Leonard of St. Catharines, Ont. It was electrically equipped and had been enlarged in 1931 to 18 beds, with a new X-ray machine and an enlarged operating theatre. Damage was estimated at over $25,000.

Family Has No Country

Will Not Be Accepted By Czechoslovakia Or Poland

Praha, Czechoslovakia.—A father, mother and their small child huddled together in an old trench in Ussok Pass of the Carpathian mountains, praying for some country to take them in.

They were ejected by Poland on ground that they are Czechs, but Czechoslovakia refused to receive them, claiming they are Poles.

So the little family, caught in a snowstorm, had to take refuge in the trench in "No Man's Land" along the border. Their borderline home is a remnant of an Austro-Russian battle during the Great War.

Imperial Conference Likely

May Possibly Be Held At Time Of Coronation

London.—The Marquess of Hartington, parliamentary undersecretary for the Dominions, said in the House of Commons that communications were being called by telephone to the government and the governments of the Dominions concerning the possibility of arranging an imperial conference in London at the time of the coronation of King Edward.

His Majesty's coronation will take place in May, 1937.

Held Shortest Sitting

London.—The House of Lords has made history by holding the shortest sitting ever in its own record short sittings. The Lord Chancellor, Viscount Halsbury, took his seat on the woolsack at 4:15 p.m. The upper house rose at 5:16 p.m. after adopting the report stage of a bill without amendment.
